

AT "ELM HILL."

The "House Party" at this Charming Country House Delightfully Entertained.

Never was gayer "House Party" than that composed of the eight merry young ladies who are spending the week at "Elm Hill" and it belongs to the eternal fitness of things that this should be true, for many of the older society people of the city can bear testimony to a host of charming memories, which this name recalls.

The beautiful old place, with its magnificent trees, broad verandas and huge linen-covered parlor, was the scene on Monday evening, of a very animated dinner party, given by the charming daughter of the hostess, and complimentary to her guests. The attire of the gentlemen lent color to the occasion, for the young ladies without exception, wore full dress, of deepest, darkest black. After dinner a dance programme of twenty members was in order and completed to the last measure.

The young ladies who are spending such a pleasant week with Mrs. J. B. Savage, at her home, "Elm Hill," out the Bethany pike, will be entertained this evening with a progressive supper, the tables to be set out on the lawn. It will be given by Miss Alice Bates. The party is composed of Misses Mary Paul, Lida Paul, Emily Pollock, Gene Waterhouse, Jennie Jepson, Alice Bates, Julia Savage and Mary C. Gardner, of Steubenville.
